Berzelius Symposium 98

The Swedish Global Health Research Conference

How can Sweden contribute to the Sustainable Development Goals?

From research to action

April 18-19 2018 at Karolinska Institutet, Stockholm

Following the success of the first “Swedish Global Health Education Conference” in Umeå in 2016, it is now time to save the date for the first “Swedish Global Health Research Conference” taking place in Stockholm on 18-19 April 2018.

The goal of the conference is to strengthen interdisciplinary research in global health across all universities in Sweden. Conceived by the Swedish Society of Medicine’s Committee for Global Health, the conference is organized by representatives from all seven medical faculties in Sweden, and will be hosted by the Department of Public Health Sciences at Karolinska Institutet.

The conference is organized by the Swedish Society of Medicine in cooperation with
